What is Blackmores Mineral Therapy?

Naturopath Maurice Blackmore pioneered Mineral Therapy in Australia in the 1930s. The therapy is based on the application of eleven minerals, supplied in physiologically active doses. Mineral Therapy adheres to naturopathic principles in treating the individual, not just the symptoms, and offers a simple and effective therapy supporting clinical outcomes. Mineral Therapy treatment solutions are often used by practitioners who see fragile patients, pregnant women, children, babies, elderly and patients who are chronically ill, fatigued and immunocompromised.

Australian Mineral Therapy when prescribed by a healthcare practitioner:

- complements other modalities
- over 80 years of empirical research and traditional naturopathic use
- is suitable for the elderly, babies, children, pregnant and lactating women
- addresses the cause, not just the symptoms
- is economical – encourages patient compliance
- is useful for both acute and chronic conditions

Testimonials

from previous Blackmores workshops:

Setting up for life – The magnificence of the infant gut microbiota

CPE
Accredited
Training

“A microbiome is defined as the totality of microbes, their DNA, and their unique interactions in a defined environment”*

The human microbiome is a dynamic, symbiotic ecosystem that influences human health throughout the life cycle.

This fascinating workshop explores the establishment of the gut microbiota in pregnancy, through birth and beyond.

*Gregory, KE. Microbiome aspects of perinatal and neonatal health. Perinat Neonatal Nurs. 2011; 25(2): 158-164

Join Naturopath Lizzie d'Avigdor and hear the latest research on the importance of a healthy early microbiome, together with a panel of healthcare practitioners and industry experts for a lively discussion on Mineral Therapy clinical pearls for infant health.

With a focus on the gut microbiota during infancy and the potential impact on infant growth and future health, this workshop and panel discussion will include discussion of:

- how the microbiome influences human health and development
- the critical window of plasticity for epigenetic modification of physiological processes, via the microbiome
- how to positively support the healthy colonisation of the gastrointestinal tract with Mineral Therapy
- the symbiotic relationships within the microbial world
- how certain exposures including environmental contaminants, medications, maternal stress, delivery mode, breastfeeding and diet may profoundly affect the developing microbiome
- The application of Mineral Therapy for baby and infant gut health

Our panel of experts will present case histories, providing an interactive forum to illustrate the application of Mineral Therapy in pregnancy, lactation and early childhood.

Workshop attendees receive over $100 value:

- Referenced course workbook with comprehensive resource list
- Product
- New Body Signs Chart
- New Mineral Therapy Quick Reference wall chart
- New Mineral Therapy Quick Reference chart
- New Herb and Mineral Companion chart
- New patient flyers
- A delicious and healthy dinner with vegetarian, gluten and dairy-free options
- Certificate of attendance and CPE points from ATMS and NHAA*

PLUS FREE access to the on-line webcast
